Kitchens Bathrooms Interior Design

The brief given to expert kitchen and bathroom designer Celia Visser for her clients' city townhouse was very clear – a combined bathroom and laundry that was innovative, aesthetically minimalist and sophisticated. They also wanted to have a blissful soak after a hard day at work as well as good storage and practicality service areas.

This may sound relatively straightforward, but, there were significant size constraints and Celia had to combine logic with creativity to deliver all that her clients desired. The other challenge was the integration of two quite different spaces into one – a luxe bathroom and a functional utility room.

Celia brilliantly resolved the soaking challenge by including an exterior spa bath which is accessed directly through a glass door from the shower area. Her clients can choose to have the glazing on the doors either frosted for when the room is being used as a bathroom, or clear at other times so they can appreciate the view into the garden – all at the flick of a switch.

The fully integrated laundry appliances are hidden in the single vertical unit. The striking horizontal lines of the bespoke

Corian® vanity in Corian® Designer White – and its seamlessly formed Corian® basin, Corian® door fronts and electric cabinetry are enhanced by the elongated mirrored cabinets holding generous amounts of storage. Corian® Designer White is a very clean "black" white – perfect for this streamlined space.

Fabrication of the Corian® vanity top, basin and door fronts were done by specialists Mark & Phillip at Topline Benches. Topline Benches are a favourite with many designers due to the absolute care they take to deliver a great outcome.

Elegant in its simplicity, this versatile room has exceeded the clients' expectations, as well as winning Celia a National Kitchen & Bathroom Association Design Award in 2014.
